

THE MONROE EVENING TIMES 1892

January 4, 1892

James Shaffer of Waterloo, Iowa arrived in this city yesterday from Janesville where he had been attending the funeral of his mother. He left this morning for his home in Waterloo.

January 6, 1892

It is seldom we are called upon to record the death of a gentleman who has lived to the age of Elisha Mosher, who departed this life this morning at 3:40, aged 91 years, 22 days. He was born in Washington Co., N.Y. on Dec. 15, 1800, where he married Elizabeth Allen to whom nine children were born. The family removed to Green County in 1843 and years ago he was one of the most enterprising citizens of Monroe where he was in business for many years. He had made many friends. He held many honorable positions in this county and discharged their duties honorably and well. The deceased lost his first wife in 1868 and in 1869 he married Mrs. Eleeta Carrington who survives him. He was a kind hearted man and performed many deeds of charity. The deceased leaves a wife and two children who will mourn the death of a devoted husband and kind parent. Seven children preceded him to the grave. The funeral will be conducted by the Odd Fellows to which association the deceased was a respected member. The ceremony will take place at the late residence of the deceased on east Washington Street at 2:00 Friday afternoon.

January 12, 1892

Juda: Dr. Clarke's youngest child, a babe of four months, died very suddenly Monday evening at 10:30. It was ailing but a short time. The funeral service will be held in Brodhead on Wednesday morning leaving the house at 9:00 am.

Juda: Birth, to Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Shafer, Jan. 4, a son.

January 14, 1892

Thomas Emerson, a most worthy and well respected citizen of Monroe, died at his home on Thursday morning, Jan. 14 at 2:00 in his 74th year, after a lingering illness. He was born August 13, 1818 in the town of Lurgan, Northern Ireland and came to American when quite young. He came to Wisconsin in 1844 and passed his last days in this city where a devoted daughter took care of him. He had been reared in the Episcopal faith and died a Christian. About a year ago Mrs. Emerson died and left the husband in the care of his daughter. Two sons are in the ranch business in Colorado and may return in time for the funeral. The deceased was a gentleman who made many warm friends. In politics he was a Democrat.

Leuemberger is dead. What shall we do with the body? This is all the particulars the family received in regard to his death. He was an old citizen of Monroe having lived here for the past 30 years. The news is a severe blow to his family who were not aware of his sickness. The body, no doubt, will be brought to this city for burial.

January 27, 1892

Any person who have read the history of the Battle of Atlanta on the 21st and 22nd July, 1864, must know that General Leggett's division of the 17th Army Corps was in a tight place when General Hardee came in their rear. But the citizens of Green County will always read the story of that battle with pride as they realize the position of Company K, 10th Wisconsin Infantry on that dreadful day. Company K was at the extreme left of General Forest's brigade and was charged upon some six or seven times. General Hardee's men were enthused by their success in driving General Smith's division and captured a battery and placed a flag on the parapet not more than 150 feet from where I stood. Charged upon us time and again but they could not get in. The Green County boys held the hill. We charged and took the day. We were ordered to hold the ground at all hazards and we did. We knew that General McPherson was killed. There was only a small part of our company there but they were brave and true and everyone felt that the success of the day and the liberties of their nation rested on their shoulders. Yes, it was the brave Green County boys with Capt. James Norris at their head with the 16th Wisconsin Infantry that took the pride out of General Hood on the 22nd July, 1864.

William Edwards

July 5, 1892

The remains of Captain L. T. Carr arrived in this city Sunday morning by special train accompanied by a number of relatives and friends who came from Madison to pay their last respects. The funeral train was met at the depot by a large number of Odd Fellows and Grand Army men of which orders he was a member, who escorted the remains and the friends to the cemetery. We copy the following from the Madison Democrat :

Captain Carr was born in Henriette, Monroe County, N.Y., on July 5, 1831. He came to Wisconsin in 1860 and located at Shullsburg. He removed to Monroe in 1862 and from there to Jefferson, Wisconsin in 1878. He was long editor and proprietor of the Jefferson Banner. Later he went to Neillsville and was for some time publisher of the Neillsville Times. He came to this city from there to an appointment to a position in the capitol. He was chief clerk of the assembly during the Democratic reign of 1883. His mental abilities fitted him for clerical positions but he was physically unable to do any such work and was given the position he held at his own request. He was a veteran of the war, enlisting in Company G, 22nd Wisconsin on August 6, 1862. He was made first lieutenant in Company K, 16th Wisconsin in December of 1863 and resigned nearly a year later; was commissioned Captain of Company A, 46th Wisconsin on Jan. 5, 1865 and mustered out October 10, 1865. He leaves a widow and stepdaughter, Maude, aged about 14. There are other children by his first wife, living in various parts of the country.

Robert Allenworth was born near Columbus, Ohio on Aug. 28, 1823. He lived there until ten years of age when, losing his father, he was taken to Uniontown, Pa., and was adopted by his uncle who carefully raised and educated him. Miss Rosena Vance was born near Uniontown, Pa., on May 30, 1825. The subjects of this sketch were married at Uniontown in 1842. Nine children were born to this happy union but only three are now living, viz.: Henry James of Independence, Iowa; Mrs. Margaret Debolt of Howard, S.D.; and Theodore B. of Madison, S.D. In 1849 they moved to Lancaster, Wisconsin. Shortly afterwards Mr. Allenworth, in company with General Collins, Theodore Barber, left Lancaster for California. They went overland by ox team. The journey took six months. Remaining one year, they returned and settled in Beetown, Wisconsin and engaged in lead mining. After two years they moved to Monroe. In 1861 he again went overland to California. Upon returning he entered upon the milling business. In 1875 the family moved to Independence, Iowa. Again, though much past mid life, he sought the gold fields of Montana and Idaho. Shortly afterwards he returned and his family moved to Howard, S.D., where with the exception of a brief visit to mining regions, he has made his home. He was acquainted with General Fremont, Kit Carson and Bridger and others. It was he who at the head of a company of men first rode through Bridger Canyon. He did much police duty in his home in the east and at the time of his death was city marshal of Howard. They both died in the great conflagration in Howard on Monday, Sept. 26. They are buried in Graceland Cemetery.
